New York World's Fair Visitors Will be Welcomed in Northfield And Throughout New England

The mountains, streams, sea-shore beaches and quaint inns of New England are preparing for an unusual influx of tourists this summer—and all because of the forthcoming New York World's Fair.

A paradox? Not at all. For unless the calculations of transportation officials are wide of the mark, "Down East" states are due to benefit enormously from the mass movement of 20,000,000 people in the direction of New York.

Many of these visitors will be thinking of rustic vacations as a follow-up to the exciting days in bustling New York and breathing-taking fair grounds. They will be able to find an enticing inspiration in the elaborate New England exhibits in the Court of States. There, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut (and Maine in its separate pavilion) will have an opportunity to display, through murals and dioramas, their recreational and historical attractions.

However, the millions who know much about them already intend to supplement their attendance at the fair with trips to Yankee land. As an indication, Vogue and House & Garden magazines conducted separate polls of their readers to find out how many would visit other recreational spots in connection with their New York Fair visits. Vogue found that 43 per cent will ALSO visit New England and House & Garden put the figure at 50 per cent, making an average for both of 46 per cent. Northfield has been named as a vacation land by several.

A fortunate coincidence is that access from the fair grounds to New England will be made extremely easy, thanks to the new $18,500,000 Whitestone Bridge. This 3770-foot long structure, which will be opened on April 29, the day before the fair opening, spans the East river from Long Island to the Bronx. It does not even touch crowded Manhattan and eliminates several miles of city travel. In fact, the distance from the fair grounds to lower New England will be hardly more than twenty miles.

In addition, railroads, buses, ships and airplanes are arranging special tours, at reduced rates, from Manhattan to New England. One railroad, for instance, is planning to offer fair visitors fifty varying types of "side trips" to the New England states.

But those are not the only pieces of good luck that will befall New England as a result of the fair. It will benefit, too, from two great movements of tourists, one sweeping in from the South and West, the other on a recreational migration from the Eastern provinces of Canada.

Elmer Thompson, secretary of the Automobile Club of America, estimates that 500,000 visitors will motor down from the Maple Leaf country of the North. The New England states will lie directly in their path, between the Canadian border and the World's Fair. Whether in going to, or returning from the fair, these recreation and fun seekers are bound to take time out to taste the mountain life, the fish in the woodland streams, the salt air of the coast with its expansive beaches—and the good old New England cooking, served up in their many quaint inns, hotels and roadside restaurants.

At the same time, Mr. Thompson expects that the influx into New England from Dixie and Western states will represent a 40 per cent increase over last summer.

But the final opportunity and test for New England will rest with its exhibits at the fair. For these are bound to draw most of all of the 20,000,000 visitors to New York. It is significant that about half of this number, according to unofficial estimates, have never visited New York before. Also, more than half are women and children who naturally will be attracted by the historical and recreational displays. And mamma and the kiddies usually have the final say with dad, especially when on vacation.

Still more important, the exhibits of the six states will bring New England closer to the country. Nearly everybody, school child or grown-up, knows of the glories of New England's historic past. And many of them may know that New England boasts one of the largest recreational and vacation lands in the country. But millions of Americans have yet to enjoy those attractions.

However, there is every indication that New England intends to make its exhibits so compelling that some of these millions will not only be charmed—but lured—to take car, boat, bus or train to the northeast country. Two acres of ground off the Court of States will be an alluring bit of old New England itself. There will be a typical waterfront scene where visitors may get a preview of some of the scenic attractions of Yankee land. A 135-foot full-rigged sailing ship will be seen moored at a wharf.

On one side of the wharf will be a merchant's warehouse in pretended preparations to receive a cargo from the hold of the ship. On the other side of the dock there will be a two-story building designed in familiar Bulfinch architectural design. Other buildings will add their charm to the whole scene. Inside the structures will be murals and dioramas to suggest such famous historical episodes as the Landing of the Pilgrims, Paul Revere's famous ride, the Battles of Concord and Lexington and Bunker Hill.

Individually, as well, the states will have much to offer. Massachusetts will have a Hall of the Past—surrounded by articles, tools and utensils of many years ago. A diorama of an old Massachusetts town, with houses, stores, churches, vehicles and farmlands, will show how the state looked in about the year 1800. The Hall of the Present, occupying the largest space in the building, will show on a triple screen movies of Massachusetts today—in living, working and playing. In the Hall of the Future will be seen the newest creations of science and industrial research, showing synthetic materials—wool made from milk, artificial silk, synthetic bristles, unbreakable glass, invisible glass and other examples of Massachusetts leadership in science and industry.

New Hampshire will present, through large and small dioramas, actual reproductions in miniature of some of the state's famous characteristics. These include the North American continent's first aerial mountain tramway, ascending Cannon Mountain, on whose side is the famous Great Stone face, carved by nature. As a contrast, there also will be a reproduction of an old-fashioned New Hampshire farm kitchen.

Rhode Island will proudly display its farm produce, its educational facilities and, with dioramas and murals, its important seashore resorts.

Vermont, of course, will have samples of its popular maple syrup on exhibit. There will be murals showing how the state is able to turn out each year nearly a million gallons of syrup and 700,000 pounds of sugar to appease the millions of Americans and others who would be lost without syrup for their pancakes or sugar for their coffee.

Connecticut, called by some the "Nutmeg State," by others the "Constitution State," will display samples of its tobacco (a believe-it-or-not exhibit since most people think that all the tobacco is grown in Virginia and the deep south). In addition, exhibits of textiles, typewriters and even pins and hooks.

Maine has invested $50,000 in its own pavilion, the better to put on proud display murals and dioramas that will indicate the grandeur and popularity of its famous mountain and seashore resorts. There will be colorful exhibits that indicate the abundance of fish in its many inland lakes and streams, samples of its well-known potato crop, miniature displays of how granite is quarried for use in paving streets and building houses throughout the United States.

While the fair is in progress, visitors will be supplied with many things from New England, perhaps without even realizing it. They will be served milk, butter and cheese from the enormous dairy farms of New Hampshire and Vermont at many of the restaurants and lunch bars scattered throughout the grounds. They'll walk on shoes made in Massachusetts and they'll wear woollens from Rhode Island. They'll know the time of day by watches and clocks manufactured in Connecticut; and Maine will supply apples for pie and potatoes for dinner.

So it should be surprising if, after thousands—if not hundreds of thousands—of tourists have at last completed their rounds of the fair, they will have in the back of

Modern Literature And "Best Sellers" Fortnightly Talk

At the regular scheduled meeting of the Fortnightly held last Friday afternoon in Alexander hall, Mrs. Ellen Ely Kyburg of Springfield, presented a most interesting talk of books, the best sellers, and modern literature. She referred to the influence of present conditions in the world upon the works of many writers, and how readers tastes were affected by the events, which are constantly passing before us. Best sellers are the result of a reader's fancy and the list in order, frequently changes from week to week as new books are issued. There is plenty of good literature in the world today and a great many worthwhile books. President Mrs. L. P. Goodspeed bestowed the prizes for the best essays on "Good Citizenship" submitted by the high school students at the meeting. They were awarded to Margaret Mary Donohue and Elizabeth Nilo. Tea was served by Mrs. Warren Whitman, Mrs. A. J. Marston and Miss Julia Austin as hostesses.

The next meeting of the Fortnightly will be Friday, April 21 at Alexander hall at 3 o'clock. It will be the annual meeting for the election of officers and the reading of reports. Following the business session, a short play will be given, entitled "A Nephew in the House" under the direction of Mr. Frank H. Montague, Mrs. Allen H. Wright and Mrs. Carroll H. Miller. The cast for the play includes Miss Mary Dalton, Mrs. George Sheldon, Mrs. William Shattuck, Mrs. Joseph Morgan and Miss Doris Miller.

Unitarians Worship In Restored Church

The large congregation that gathered in the main upper room of the South church last Sunday morning found it fully restored. The ceiling and walls had been artistically refrescoed by Mr. Max Huber, the pews damaged by the falling chimney caused by the hurricane were restored or replaced, and the upholstery of all the seats was renewed.

The minister, Rev. Mary Andrews Conner, conducted the services and gave an Easter story and message. The music in charge of Mrs. Charles H. Webster and Mrs. L. P. Goodspeed was up to standard. An anthem, "The Lord is My Strength," was rendered by the choir of twelve, and a solo, "Consider the Lilies," was sung by Mrs. F. H. Smead. Near the close there were accessions of eleven members. A young man who, within the week before Easter, was called to South America, left his name on a membership card with others of the family and was included in the recognition service.

Since 1930, when a joint pastorate began, there are reported forty-four persons as having added their names to the membership list. Christenings of children in these last years have been fifteen. The amount of $4,000 from the large bequest of the late Miss Amy B. Alexander, of Springfield, has been received and invested. The American Unitarian Association is generously contributing half the cost of repairs on the church edifice and with the accumulating subscriptions of the people there will be no debt. Mr. George N. Kidder, who has had charge of the repairs and re-occupancy of the upper room, has done faithful, efficient work with splendid cooperation.

Bowled At Keene Bumped The Floor

Members of the Northfield bowling team with friends to the number of eighteen, engaged a bus from the Northfield Transfer and went to Keene Thursday evening of last week to bowl a team from Hinsdale. The final score gave the game to Hinsdale. During the evening local players, including Harry Gingsas, Sam Truesdell, Charles Browning and Leonard Barnes went out on the floor to roller-skate. They had a good time and so did all the on-lookers. It is said that these four gentlemen fell and bumped the floor so often that they ruined four good pair of pants, and even left marks on the polished boards. It is said the management ordered them off to save any further damage.

their mind another thought: "On to New England!"

Northfield will receive its share of World's Fair visitors and they should be given a most cordial welcome by our citizens.

The Music Festival West'n Mass. Schools At Amherst April 29

From Amherst comes the announcement and an invitation to Northfield, to attend one of the outstanding musical events of the year, when school orchestras, bands, mixed glee clubs and boys and girls glee clubs, instrumental soloists, vocal soloists and ensembles will be heard in a program for awards in the various classes. The festival will be held in Amherst on Saturday, April 29.

Auditions for the several groups will take place in various places in the center of the town, in public buildings, churches and in Amherst College buildings. These sites are so chosen that the walking distances between halls are short. Boy Scouts will act as guides. Music racks will be provided in each hall and string basses and tympani will be provided for the numerous orchestras which will compete.

Ample parking facilities for busses and other vehicles will be provided and an emergency first aid station will be established. Correspondence relative to local arrangements should be addressed to Dr. L. L. Dudley, Amherst school superintendent. The program for the day will be as follows:

8 a. m. and 12:30 p. m.: Individual group auditions in six or more music halls simultaneously. 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.: Student lunches at several lunch rooms to be designated. Lunch tickets must be arranged for in advance and will be issued with admission badges at the time of the bus arrival.

12:15 p. m.: Supervisors' luncheon, Lord Jeffery Inn. Arrangements must be made with registration.

1 p. m.: Rehearsal of massed bands in the high school gymnasium.

2 p. m.: Parade one mile from the center of Amherst to the girls athletic field at the Massachusetts State college.

2:30 p. m.: Massed band program under the direction of Marc Tarlow, teacher of music in the high school of Music and Art, New York City.

3 p. m.: Marching and drilling exhibitions.

3:30 p. m.: Chorus singing, with the Greenfield High School band accompanying. This is a new feature. All vocal groups are asked to participate. Selections to be sung by the chorus will be made from the following: "America," "America, the Beautiful," and "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes."

It is hoped that all important schools in Western Massachusetts will be represented by students, and that the friends of music in the public schools can arrange to attend to witness the features of the festival. All are cordially invited.

Our Orange Planter Will Return In May

Prof. Spurgeon Gage and his good wife, who have been at their home in Orlando, Fla., since early fall expect to get back to their home here on Winchester road for the summer early in May. Prof. Gage a former member of the Mount Hermon school faculty, went to Florida after his retirement and engaged in the orange orchard business. He bought a large acreage and planted it to trees and since has added considerable more land, now all in groves. His bungalow home was built and said by Northfield friends, who have visited him to be most commodious and attractive. The Gages have a most pleasant place for residence. In a letter just received, Mr. Gage says that up to April first, he has sent out on orders, many as a result of his ads in the Press, something like 600 bushels of his fruit. He says "it has been a pleasant experience and he has contacted many people with happy results." Tons of his oranges have found their way northward by express and many have come to Northfield. Friends here will be glad to welcome them to their Northfield home for the summer.

In Show Business

Over the radio, WHAI, there is being presented a production, under the heading "Pioneer Valley Playhouse," Lewis Wood and Henry Johnson are the participants. The show has had two engagements, one last night and hereafter is scheduled for Sundays, the first April 16 at 8 o'clock. Local folks may want to listen in and perhaps a second time if it pleases. If you like the program, write WHAI to continue them.

Hermion School Protests Japan Sales War Materials

A resolution of protest against the sale to Japan of war materials used in the destruction of Chinese educational institutions was sent Tuesday by hundreds of Mount Hermon school students, faculty and staff to the President of the United States, the Secretary of State, Senator Key Pittman chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, and to the senators from Massachusetts.

This action is part of the project undertaken by the school community in the raising of funds for rehabilitating the schools and colleges in China and for the relief of Chinese students, who have been forced by the war to move thousands of miles into the interior to continue their educational opportunities. Under the leadership of the Far Eastern Student Friendship Fund, more than 200 colleges and schools of America and Canada are cooperating in raising $50,000 for this purpose. Mount Hermon school has already raised $135. The resolution is as follows:

"Whereas students, faculty and staff of Mount Hermon school have raised a sum of money to be used for the rehabilitation of Chinese schools and universities destroyed by Japanese bombs and gunfire, and whereas it seems highly inconsistent for citizens of the United States to sell implements of war to Japan to be used to destroy Chinese schools and universities, and maim and kill Chinese students:

Be it resolved, that we protest to the authorities of the United States government against the sale to Japan of such implements of war as aeroplanes for bombing, scrap iron, and gasoline for warplanes, and

Be it further resolved, that we recommend that sale by citizens of the United States to Japan of aeroplanes for bombing, scrap iron, and gasoline for warplanes be limited to an amount equal in value to the average sold during any single year in peace times preceding the so-called Sino-Japanese incident in Manchuria."

Hermion Alumni Stress Religious Needs In Boston Session

By withdrawing all religious training from the public schools, we are doubling our chances for failure in this country, according to Dr. David R. Porter headmaster of Mount Hermon school. Dr. Porter addressed 150 Boston alumni Tuesday evening at the Chamber of Commerce building in Boston. "I recognize," he said, "the wisdom, indeed, the necessity of so doing; but religious training taken from the public schools must be supplied adequately elsewhere."

"We're inclined in America to boast of size and progress, but many are beginning to fear we have lost our sense of direction. We are getting too many higher school graduates who are educated but anti-social, cultured but corrupt, trained in the scientific method but impotent for costly social adventure."

Dr. Porter said the withdrawal of religious training from the schools means two lines of renewed educational emphasis. "Every community, through its churches and interdenominational agencies," he said, "must parallel its public schools with a greatly improved system of voluntary religious education."

"Second, private schools and colleges should take far more seriously their own religious responsibility."

Gov. Saltonstall was another speaker at the annual banquet, which marked the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Mount Hermon Alumni association.

The Governor stressed three points in his message. "Unemployment is the chief problem of government today," he stated. "My office averages 425 letters daily from people all over the state who want jobs, and desperately need them."

The second point stressed was the need of economy in government. "The demands of such organizations as the Federation of Taxpayers, for economy in government are justifiable," the Governor said. "We have got to economize if we wish to keep our industries and property owners solvent. It means, however, that services now performed by the state, in some cases, will have to be given up." The last point was that "it is necessary for the government to balance its budget and not to pass on to our children the burdens we are faced with."

Governor Saltonstall paid high tribute to the late Arthur Bean, a loyal Hermonite who was a close personal friend of the Governor. "I would have fewer gray hairs in my head now, I assume, if I had the honor to be a graduate of Mount Hermon."

Nearly 150 persons attended the dinner meeting, including Jerome Burr, alumni president; Frank Dunn, alumni secretary; Senator Lawrence Curtis and Arthur Perry, trustees; John T. Holden, secretary to the trustees; and Harry Erickson, George Lawrence, Carroll Rikert, Alfred Petschke of Mount Hermon; S. A. Norton of Greenfield; and Prof. Stephen Stark of Boston.

FOOD STORES USE ELECTRIC REFRIGERATORS FOR SAFETY'S SAKE

—SAYS MODERN

"This may surprise you... but it's true: 99 out of every 100 grocery stores, meat markets and delicatessens with mechanical refrigeration have chosen electric refrigeration. These food store operators know that modern electric refrigerators keep food safe... and they refuse to have any other kind. Most food stores display the sign that this dealer is proudly pointing to. It reads, 'THE GOOD YOU BUY HERE HAS BEEN KEPT SAFE IN AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR.'"

"Take my advice... and patronize these stores. Then ask yourself this question: 'Am I keeping my food as safe as SAFE as they do in the store?' You can... with a modern electric refrigerator... and save money, too. 'Amazing as it seems, I cost you LESS to operate than any other kind."

"I'm much FASTER, too. I deliver full-bodied ice cubes as fast as you want them. No overnight waits for me!"

"And SIMPLE! Just plug me into a wall socket and forget me."

SO EASY TO OWN! You can have your choice of any of the world-famous makes for just a few dollars down. Visit your nearest dealer, department store, or utility showroom.

EDITORIAL

Boycott Germany and stop buying German goods. That will be one way to defeat her in her despotic ambition. The boycott is within the power of all to bring her face to face with an economic condition. A recent poll, taken by the Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup) shows that 65 per cent of voters now favor such a movement. While my sympathy goes to the German people, who are not responsible for the crazy antics of their leaders and are powerless to prevent the militaristic designs upon minorities, yet some pressure must be brought upon the nation to affect their purse strings, for that is the pulse of their sustaining power. Again I say don't buy German, and that means a patronage of any kind.

Ford Dealers Act

Over 250 Ford dealers in New England gathered for a meeting and discussion in Boston last week Thursday and among those present was Ross L. Spencer, Ford dealer of this town. The dealers have organized for a real campaign effort and are filled with enthusiasm for future sales. An executive committee of nine was chosen by the dealers and Mr. Spencer was unanimously named. This committee will supplement the national campaign of advertising Ford cars by a well defined plan of publicity through newspapers of New England. The work calls for a high degree of responsibility by the executive committee and Mr. Spencer is to be congratulated in the trust and confidence reposed in him by his fellow dealers.

Be Kind To Animals

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall has issued a proclamation calling for observance of the 25th annual be kind to animals week from the 17th to 22d, with humane Sunday on the 23d. It reads in part as follows:

"While Massachusetts has always been a leader in organized activities for the protection of animals, it is timely to note that just 50 years ago George T. Angell, here in Boston, started the American Humane Education society, the first of its kind in the world, which has been a powerful influence in character training through teaching kindness to animals, especially in public schools. It is, indeed, fitting that in the home state of this national organization and of numerous societies for the protection of animals, the governor, following the custom of the past 20 years, should take official action, and therefore I, Leverett Saltonstall, governor of Massachusetts, do hereby proclaim the week beginning April 17 as be kind to animals week and designate Sunday, April 23, as humane Sunday and call upon all citizens of this commonwealth to consider the claims upon us for justice and compassion in the treatment of the treatment of the beasts of farm and fields and forest and the birds of the air.

PUBLIC FORUM

The Editor of the Press:

An Anxious World

Again Adolph Hitler provides the outstanding news of the world. He has held the front page in the newspapers and the front of the stage in the world scene almost constantly for over a year with his breath-taking aggressions which have brought Germany from a population of less than 70 millions to one of more than 90 millions. Czechoslovakia has been absorbed and also Memel. The world is in a more anxious state of mind than even in Napoleon's day. No one can guess Hitler's future purposes. Where will he strike next? And what will other nations do when he strikes? No one knows. The foreign policy of every nation is obscure and uncertain. How serious is Mussolini in the demand upon France which he has inspired the Italian press and populace to voice? Where will Poland stand if Hitler takes an aggressive line in Rumania and the Ukraine? Are the mosaic parts of Yugoslavia getting ready to demand self-determination and with the demand throw that country into chaos as Austria and Czechoslovakia were thrown into chaos only to present Hitler with an invitation to come in and gobble up the whole thing? How far will Britain and France let this process go on without military intervention? Where will Franco's Spain stand? The whole world is feverishly producing arms and armaments. Nothing like it was ever known before. If Karl Marx could see it he would declare that the prophecy that the capitalistic world would destroy itself in universal war was on the point of coming true. The nations are in control of irrational forces. Reason has abdicated. The dilemma seems to be absolute. If Hitler is unopposed there will be world-wide tyranny. If he is opposed and destroyed—who dare to hope that victory for the democracies will make the world safe for democracy? —Herbert F. Randolph

An Organ Needed

The Virginia Fresh Air camp is in need of an organ and there is hope that one will be forthcoming from one of our homes in town or elsewhere. If any of our readers are in possession of an organ which they will donate, won't you please telephone 93, Mrs. William R. Moody, chairman of the Virginia camp committee.

Northfield Grange

Fish & Game Club Had Fine Affair

The Fish and Game association of Northfield held a supper, entertainment and dance at the town hall, Monday evening which drew a capacity crowd. Supper was served to over 150 guests at 6:30 o'clock by Mrs. Charles E. Leach. It consisted of a roast beef dinner with all the vegetables and "fixins" and was of an appetizing kind as Mrs. Leach always arranges. After the dinner an hour of magic was given by "Bell, the magician" which was much appreciated. Dancing followed to the music of Jilison's orchestra until one o'clock and the large floor saw over 250 persons enjoying themselves.

Door prizes were awarded Robert Miller, flies; Mrs. Joseph Bilmon, fly rod; Mrs. Russell Hale, groceries; Miss Florence Hale, fish line; Mr. Deane, fish pole and reel; Mrs. Alfred Holton, ginger ale; Miss Rena Tyler, soda; Clifford Sanborn, fishing boots; Edward Morse, $1.00.

The committee in charge deserve much credit for the handling of this successful affair and the entire proceeds were spent in giving our people a good time, an evening of pleasure, without profit to the treasury. The committee on banquet and prizes were Harlan Atwood, James Dale, Herbert Black, Walter Scoble and James Dresser. The committee for the entertainment and dance were Raymond Deane, Alfred Holton, Frederick White, Harry Haskell, William Summers, Donald Truesdell.

Miss Ann Merriman of Port Chester, N. Y., and Miss Mabel Merriman of New York City spent the Easter week-end with their sister, Mrs. Frank H. Montague here.
